The invention also relates to a semiconductor device having a semiconductor element provided on an SOI substrate. Examples of the SOI substrate include a silicon substrate having a single crystal silicon layer and an insulating film formed on the single crystal silicon layer. An SOI layer which is a single crystal silicon layer is provided as an active layer for the semiconductor element. An SOI substrate itself is formed by bonding a single crystal silicon substrate to a single crystal silicon substrate. In contrast, an SOI layer is not bonded to a substrate because there are no materials which can bond the single crystal silicon substrate and single crystal silicon layer. For this reason, there is a problem that the silicon layer is not supported by the substrate. As one example of a method for solving this problem, a technology has been proposed in which an SOI layer is formed over a buried oxide film which is an insulating film formed on a bulk single crystal silicon substrate. The SOI substrate is formed by bonding a single crystal silicon substrate and single crystal silicon layer to each other. In addition, the buried oxide film is formed between the single crystal silicon substrate and single crystal silicon layer. The single crystal silicon layer is used as an active layer for the semiconductor element. The single crystal silicon substrate is used as a support substrate. This will be described below with reference to drawings. FIG. 7 is a cross-sectional view of an SOI substrate according to the related art. FIG. 7 illustrates a process of forming a semiconductor device according to the related art. In the drawing, reference numeral 1 indicates a bulk single crystal silicon substrate, 2 indicates a buried oxide film, 3 indicates a single
